Version 402: 2026, Sunday, October 4th at 10:47 pm NPST (2026, Sunday, October 4th at 11:47 pm PST)

NPST – New Pacific Standard Time: same as PST (Pacific Standard Time) but without daylight savings time.

Old note, 2026, September 7th: I unexpectedly passed out tonight. I had been fighting for months to keep these 2 documents (travel log, and game center) within the original range (finish before 12:00 am) but my hand has been forced. I am hoping this to be a rare thing. I passed out unexpectedly for about an hour and a half. The criteria of 6:00 am being the start of the new day will just have to be used here as well. I am just glad I didn't go out any longer.

Work in progress
A log of all of the games played by Sean Patrick Myrick

Note: Right now, daily updates are only being done so that I can keep the document going, so I don’t abandon it/forget about it. An update with new con tent will eventually be made.

File structure legend

No characters before: This is a game (Minecraft)

Underscore before: This is a company/developer (_Mojang)

Hyphen before: This is a hardware platform (-Desktop-Computer)

Double hyphen before: This is a software platform (--Linux)

Exclamation point before: This is a category (!Voxel)

Single period before: This is a sorting directory (.unsorted)

The rule isn’t consistently followed yet. I have been lazier to implement this today, compared to my offline streaming service project.

Forza Horizon 6

Uno (Ubisoft, XBOX One Something, these names are confusing, and it isn't my XBOX. I know what it is now, but I am still keeping this to protest this idiotic naming scheme, XBOX, XBOX 360, XBOX One, XBOX One S, XBOX One S XR, XBOX One S XX, XBOX One XxXGamerXxX)

Major project 2026, June 26th

As part of a new backup test, I began to work with my Git-image A (game images) folder again.

EXPERIMENT:

1. Create a folder with at least 100 sub-folders containing custom folder art (keep it somewhat small)
2. Copy this folder (not the sub-folder) to a USB drive
3. If the artwork stays upon ejection, plug it (the USB drive) into your other laptop, and copy the big folder to the laptops hard drive

Desired result: The folder art retains throughout the copying process, and I don’t have to manually reapply artwork for every single folder.

Possible other result: The folder art does not transfer correctly, and development of FolderArtist will become even more important.

Color legend

~~Ignore highlighter colors, they are not needed for the legend~~ (never mind, only black is exempt from this rule. It was too hard to read without the highlighter)

Teal A200 – Backed up (by @Seanpm2001)
Green A400 – Backed up (by @CSM)
Red A400 – Backed up by both @seanpm2001 and @CSM
Yellow A200 – Not yet played by @seanpm2001
White – added, but not archived
Orange A400 – Queued, but partially archived by @seanpm2001
Purple A200 – Partially backed up by @CSM
Black on white – Archive source is available, or the entry may be an error
Red A400 on white – The archive source has been lost
Brown 600 on white – The game has been played by @seanpm2001
Green A400 on white – The game has been beaten by @seanpm2001
Orange A400 on white – A speedrun of the game was performed by @seanpm2001

TODO: List mods (what designation should mods get? I am thinking _-ModName)

This whole time, I have been using `l` to list directories, but did not realize it was not getting hidden files. The command `ls -d .*` works best for now, but requires 2 commands to be run, and for the list to be concatenated. The command `ls -lA` would have worked, if it didn't show timestamps

Update: the simple solution is the obvious one: `ls -a`

The list needs to be reformatted.

Archived (WIP)

2048 [COMPLETED, highest score: 1,048,576 (with blocks of 65,536)] (I made an error when I originally wrote this, by assuming what my score was. My highest score is actually 1,000,000, the game is still active, but has been dormant for close to a year, it is minimized, and I fear I will erase the score if I unminimize it, see below)

I carried out the experiment today, but it used far more time than expected, as my focus was starting to wane again today due a health issue, and this project helped me cope with stress. I applied folder art to over 400 folders. I still consider this small, as the folder is only 1.2 gigabytes.

On 2026, Sunday, August 23rd, I finished applying folder art to every folder.

Other games

- Firefighter simulator (view-only)

- Duke Nukem 3D 20th anniversary (view-only)

Undetermined games

- ~~Unknown Rick and Morty XBOX game~~ (found it, it is called “High on Life”) listing this update several days late
- Undetermined GBA game (possibly by Disney)
- Undetermined matching game, either GBA or DSi (matching game, weird font, first time I saw the number 7 with a line through it, circa 2010)
- Undetermined Pac-Man game (either GBA or DSi, most likely GBA)
- Undetermined pet shop game (iOS 6)
- Undetermined island city development game, pixel art (iOS 6)
- Undetermined planet defense game, defending a planet from objects (Adobe Flash)
- Undetermined aquarium screensaver (Windows XP or Windows Vista)
- Undetermined aquarium screensaver (iOS 6)
- Undetermined Minecraft clone/voxel game (Android 2.6 to Android 6.1)
- Undetermined Monkey game (something along the lines of coffee break studios (developer name) iOS 6)
- Undetermined tower defense game (may already be found, I am missing some music: closest match: Stick Wars, iOS 6)
- Undetermined Do Not Press the Red Button game (had a lot of dialog, the button would talk rude to you. Continuously pressing the button brought up a different process, such as the button being made smaller, changing colors, duplicating, and having you press the correct red button, until ultimately, the button couldn’t be pressed anymore. Platform: either iOS 4, 5 or 6)

Grand Theft Auto Phase II (2026)

I am currently going through a Grand Theft Auto phase for a second time (the first phase was in either 2022 or 2023, I will have to look at earlier logs to find information on this) particularly, interest is highest for Grand Theft Auto II (1999) I have always had a preference for 2D and 2.5D games, but there are still 3D games I like. GTA II seems like the best mixture of Grand Theft Auto in a 2D environment, it appears to be an improvement over the original. The successor games are all in 3D. Grand Theft Auto II is currently my favorite GTA game, the other one being San Andreas, which I have played. So far, I haven't actually been able to play GTA II, due to a lack of an emulator at the time. I have just been listening to music, watching a longplay, and reading the GTA Wiki. It seems fitting, as any of the modern games aren't as playable, due to crippling DRM, and online tethering. Unfortunately, unless the server is reverse engineered, anything involving GTA Online is not going to be playable in the future (the games themselves could work through emulation, but not if they depend solely on this online functionality) GTA II is just old enough to not be too crippled with DRM, and all of its methods have been cracked at this point.

Due to an addiction, and too much interference and annoyance with music repeating in my head, I am working towards forcefully ending this phase.

Version 375 (2026, Tuesday, September 8th at 01:47 am PST)

I unexpectedly passed out tonight. I had been fighting for months to keep these 2 documents (travel log, and game center) within the original range (finish before 12:00 am) but my hand has been forced. I am hoping this to be a rare thing. I passed out unexpectedly for about an hour and a half. The criteria of 6:00 am being the start of the new day will just have to be used here as well. I am just glad I didn't go out any longer.

TODO: Talk about game status updates, and their recent expansions

This document has a lot of potential, but I don’t have the time and resources to properly update it.
